

Mission Acres was a rural community in the northern San Fernando Valley. Its historic boundaries correspond roughly with community of North Hills.

North Hills is one of the oldest communities in the San Fernando Valley. It was originally named Mission Acres. Area developers later changed the name to Sepulveda after the Sepulveda Family, whose roots trace back to the founding of the city. In 1992, the name changed to North Hills, it has since subdivided into East and West, divided by the 405 freeway.

"Fido" stands guard on the N/W border of North Hills.

Serving Our Community

Neighborhood Councils are advisory bodies with annual budgets funded by taxpayer dollars. Board members are City officials who are elected by those who live, work, or own property or a business in the community that a Council represents, and they donate their time and service as volunteers.

LA's 99 Neighborhood Councils together form the grassroots level of the LA City government. The system was created to connect LA's diverse communities to City Hall, and was established in 1999 by an amendment to the City Charter. While Neighborhood Council board members are volunteers, they are public officials elected to office by the members of their community.

Neighborhood Councils advocate on issues like homelessness, housing, land use, emergency preparedness, public safety, parks, transportation, and sustainability. They also provide local expertise and a local voice on the delivery of City services to their communities.
